

Updated information on FY03 costs for commercial data base packages – 6/6/03 (Feb2003.PR.25)

Follow-up email to Tom Wood from Scott McFarlane regarding updated information on FY03 costs for commercial data base packages – 6/6/03

Tom,

Below you have a charge for MS Access. I understood that MS Access was a part of the Office 2000 as well as Office XP packages that we are licensed to run. If not that would imply that the SA's need to somehow keep track of who is running MS Access. Can you clarify?

Scott,

Tom Wood's response to Scott McFarlane – 6/6/03

Access is part of our Office package. I was asked to estimate how much we are paying for all the database packages. As I said in the comments under Access, we estimate Access to be ~$90 of the $671 MS Enterprise desktop charge, which includes the Office package. There is no need to keep track of the specific usage of Access in relation to cost.

Let me know if you still have questions.....Tom
